Report on recent regional activity

- Transportation has been arranged in King County from rural areas to I-5 and to services
- A Stand-down was held by five counties in the South Puget Sound area
- Counties are looking to one another for ideas, i.e. King County and Pierce County's jail project and 3 or 4 off-shoots of that, and King County's levy

“What is the environment we’re working within?”

- Economic
- Limited funds for National Guard and Reservists
 - Lack of connectivity among programs with resources, resulting in struggles within silos
 - It takes up to a year to complete a discharge when injury is involved; can’t draw unemployment or work.
- Social
- More families connected to vets who need services
 - Mid-life vets rather than 20’s – what is the PTSD with them? Recognition of the physical stress of getting in shape at mid-life
 - Lack of in-patient mental health, drug, alcohol services
 - Homelessness is an issue, along with lack of transportation for vets
- Political
- Needed changes, education or clarification of RCW 47.04.007 re: the definition of a vet
 - Veterans’ needs are a popular topic presently
 - Needed education for legislators about vet’s issues
 - Burden of support is shifting to the states rather than federal.
 - States/counties must communicate often and up to the federal gov’t
 - www.wliha.org has listed funding proposals for housing
 - Change to Vets’ Assistance funds
 - Levy for funds in King County passed by 57% vote
 - Gov Gregoire has placed an emphasis on homelessness and veterans—building temporary housing
 - More funds (VIP and VCC) available now ever—also more needs
 - CVOOC outreach clinics throughout the state of Washington
- Technology
- “If it’s not on the web, it doesn’t exist.” People expect info from the web
 - Technology can provide a variety of ways for outreach
 - A tool for program connectivity
 - Possibility of a universal case management system
- Demographics
- 40ish National Guard and Reservists called back to duty
 - Some go active and return to employment
 - Self-employed suffer upon return due to business loss
 - Those with licensing, CEU requirements face losses
 - Serving people from 2-85, who use a wide range of communication modes
 - Viet Nam vets ageing and may tax resources by their numbers and needs
